Well, I am a little delayed getting the market report out this week, but we had a busy and exciting weekend, and the market report got put on the back burner. For that, I apologize. But sometimes family and friends just have to come first. ❤️

This weekend we officially welcomed Hanna into our family with the wedding of Tristan and Hanna, and it was quite a wonderful weekend! There is just something about getting together with so many people you love and don't get to see nearly often enough.

Weddings, graduations, funerals...it seems like those are the times we all finally stop what we're doing and make the time to get together. We probably shouldn't wait for a special occasion to enjoy each other, visit, laugh and have a little fellowship, but life gets busy, and sometimes we need a reason to slow down and do just that. This weekend was a pretty darn good reason. ❤️

Now, back to the cattle!

We had another good run of weighups and calves on Friday, September 25th, at Crawford Livestock Market.

The weighup market continues to stay a bit softer. As we get deeper into fall, more cows are coming to town as producers preg check and make those annual culling decisions. The cow and bull trade has backed off some from the highs we saw earlier, but there is still plenty of value in these cattle.

And one thing that certainly isn't getting cheaper is getting cattle from Point A to Point B! Diesel prices have jumped considerably over the past several weeks, putting additional pressure on freight costs. That's something that affects everybody in this business, from the ranch to the feedyard to the packer, and eventually works its way into what cattle are worth where they stand.

Even though we had a lighter run of calves Friday, we still saw strong prices throughout the day. Good quality calves continue to find plenty of demand, and the cattle that have the genetics, health program, condition and uniformity are definitely getting noticed. The feeder market has had some ups and downs from week to week, but demand for good cattle remains strong.

Most importantly, we continue to be incredibly thankful for our tribe of people. Our consignors who trust us with their cattle, our buyers who show up week after week, and a crew that works some awfully long days to get the job done. We feel pretty blessed to get to work FOR and WITH all of you.

We still think we have the best barn in the USA. us 🐮

Of course, we are TOTALLY biased. 😊❤️

Thank you for another great Friday at Crawford Livestock Market! We will be back at it with over 6,500 of calves this week! And this week we will have THURSDAY weighup sales.
