We had a light run of both weighups and feeders today. The cattle market is still in a bit of a freefall, with continued uncertainty and commentary surrounding increased imported beef putting plenty of pressure on an already volatile market.

It has certainly been a wild few weeks. Fed cattle prices and feeder futures have backed off considerably from their early-summer highs, and cash cattle and boxed beef have continued to struggle this week. At the same time, the underlying cattle supply remains historically tight, with July feedlot placements coming in at record-low levels. .

We sure hope things have a chance to settle down and straighten themselves out as we head into our early Fall calf run. One thing we know about the cattle business, it can change in a hurry, and we will continue doing everything we can to navigate it right alongside our customers.

Thank you again to everyone who buys with us, sells with us, works for us and supports Crawford Livestock Market. We appreciate you all so very much. We truly couldn't do what we do without the people on both sides of the ring and the crew behind the scenes.
